World AIDS Day 2010: Toward Universal Access and Human Rights
Today, MSH teams around the world observed World AIDS Day by participating in national commemorations and offering HIV testing, counseling, and prevention messages.

- In Guyana, the GHARP II team announced the winners of a contest among journalists and media houses for the best projects to reduce stigma and discrimination.
- In Honduras, AIDSTAR-Two supported its partner NGOs in a variety of special events, including puppet shows, health fairs, and HIV rapid test promotion.
- In Ethiopia, HCSP is having an exhibition booth at the national celebration displaying Information Education Communication materials on PMTCT and stigma and discrimination.
- At the Cambridge, MA and Arlington, VA office we’re wearing red ribbons to remember those we have lost and we’ve placed a large red ribbon on the outside of the building (pictured above).
- We participated in the Light for Rights campaign [4].

Read More

- Integrated Health Systems Is Key to Decreasing HIV [5], by Daraus Bukenya, MSH Global Lead on HIV/TB
- Innovative Approaches to Providing HIV Services for Most-at-Risk-Populations [6], by Jonathan D. Quick, MD, MPH, MSH President and CEO
- AIDSTAR-Two Report Calls for Increased Investment in HIV/AIDS Interventions for Men Who Have Sex with Men in Eastern Europe [7]
Source URL: https://www.msh.org/blog/2010/12/01/world-aids-day-2010-toward-universal-access-and-human-rights

Links
[1] https://www.msh.org/blog/2010/12/01/world-aids-day-2010-toward-universal-access-and-human-rights#comments
[10] https://www.msh.org/blog-tags/cambridge
[12] https://www.msh.org/blog-tags/gharp
[16] https://www.msh.org/blog-tags/pmtct
[17] https://www.msh.org/blog-tags/world-aids-day